Artist Bio

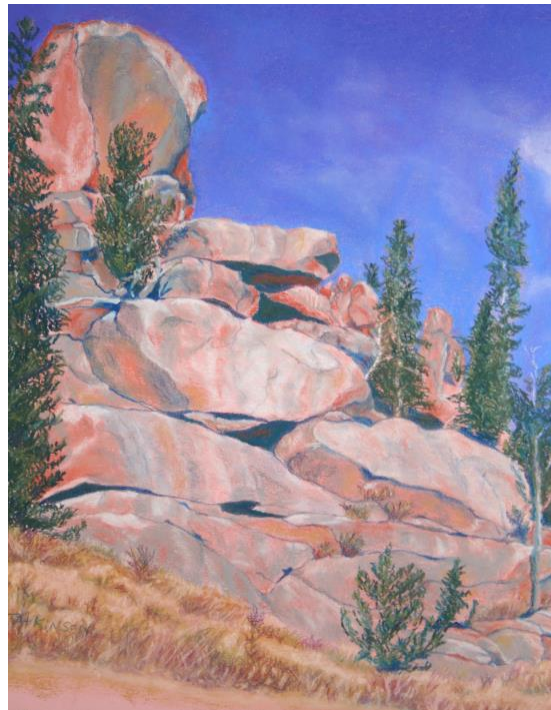

After a 30 year career in public service, Terry Atkinson rekindled her passion for art and fell in love with a previously unexplored medium: pastels.

“Pastels are pure, vivid color that capture and reflect light so the subject comes alive.”

An exhibiting member of both the MidAtlantic Pastel Society and the James River Art League, Terry has shown her work at a variety of venues including the For Art’s Sake, Uptown and JarrettThor Fine Arts galleries, the Cultural Arts Center at Glen Allen, the Montpelier Center for Arts & Education and a number of community art venues.

Personal Statement

“For me, pastel painting captures with perfect clarity the emotion of a moment. I know I have been successful when I can feel the joy of the moment every time I look at the finished painting.”
